Cover Photo

Inasmuch as I, as editor, have taken more than 90% of the Advocate photos in recent months, giving photo credits has been a non-existent task. Everything changed on the March 28 and 29 weekend when illness forced me to miss all three events. I also missed the Cable Car tour in San Francisco the next weekend, but illness was not the reason. I was in my Boxster excited about all the terrific photo ops that are so natural to San Francisco. Blocked by a firetruck while waiting to turn from Powell Street to Lefty O'Doul's, I did not see the Diablo Cable Car make its, from my most frustrating perspective, "premature evacuation." Apparently the presence of a horde of emergency vehicles allowed the decision makers to give priority to a safe and easy exit over the promise to make sure that I was there to follow in the camera crew capacity.

Fortunately, Chris Paterno did an excellent job providing photos of the tech session and Ted French used his Olympus to get fine shots of the Awards dinner. I also now have photos from Ed and Rosemary Tavares' Nikon and from Patrick Schmidt's Canon covering more of the Cable Car tour. The cover photo of the Wash 'n Shine prep session at AutoAffair is from Chris's FUJIFILM Fine Pix 2600 Zoom.

From the President

by Patrick Schmidt

Thinking of previous years, many of us recall experiences that we want to repeat. These may include group events, driving activities, special purpose gatherings or just enjoying a beautiful outing on our own.

Adding to these options, the Region has picked up the pace and frequency of events as Spring has arrived and the weather has improved.

The March 27 Annual Meeting and Awards Banquet honored the performance of several of our members with recognition of jobs well done. The list of award winners and photos are on page ten.

We all had a great time on the third consecutive St. Patrick's Day Cable Car Tour. We are fortunate to have such a great city to tour, and there is no better way to see it than with a personalized and humorously narrated tour by an experienced San Francisco native.

The tech session organized by Chris Paterno, along with our host and regular sponsor, the AutoAffair in Danville, was well attended and offered new perspectives on preparing your Porsche for the upcoming 19th annual Wash 'n Shine. Miguel sweetened the pot and offered a motorized scooter for the Region if we generated $1,000 in sales on the day of the prep event. We made it!

One of the suggestions was that we raffle the scooter at the concours. This raffle income can then increase the funds that we donate to charity. Just a reminder that the Wash 'n Shine Concours is the Region's annual charity activity. Along with the proceeds we provide, PCA National adds $350. Again this year, the charity is "Blankets for Kids" and is chaired by Jo Molz. Thanks, Jo!

Please come out to enjoy the Wash 'n Shine at the AutoAffair in the Danville Livery on Sunday, May 30th. See page 11 for additional details.

There is one experience that I try to repeat when the time and the weather are perfect. The decision was to take the "long way" home from San Jose to Dublin via Mt. Hamilton and Livermore. The trip to San Jose via I-680 took a little over 30 minutes. The return trip of over 50 miles covered some of the nicest Porsche roads in the Bay Area or California for that matter.

I didn't push my Carrera as these roads are public roads. After passing the "Junction," a friendly biker hangout, there was a cluster of a dozen or so "hot" bikes with the drivers in colorful racing leathers. I waved "hello" as all of us friendly bikers do. After traveling about five minutes, two bike headlights flickered in my mirrors. Since the next part of the road was not a safe place for them to pass, I sped up a little and did not see the bikes for another five minutes or so. When they appeared again in my mirrors, there was another stretch of single lane road where I could not safely pull over. When the bikes did catch up, I slowed down, pulled over safely, and waved them by. Now I had the opportunity to follow them and pay close attention to their brake lights. When they slowed down, I knew it was time to brake and down shift myself. After about 20 or 30 minutes of continuing toward Livermore, one of the bikes slowed, stopped, and took off his gloves and took a deep breath. It was a nice drive!

The Porsche Crest

by the Editor

Before 1953, Porsches only had the name in script and there was no emblem. Max Hoffman, the U.S. importer, asked Dr. Porsche for such an emblem and, during that lunch, Ferdinand Porsche sketched what would eventually become the official Porsche crest on a napkin. The three elements were: the Porsche name on top; four quadrants with the antlers and red and black from Baden-Württemberg's coat of arms, and the shield from Stuttgart's city badge. The rearing stallion is reflective of the city's horse-breeding heritage, i.e., stud garden.

Always exemplifying prestige and the status afforded to Porsches, the crest first appeared in 1953 on the 356 horn button and later on the front hood in 1957. Since a '57 356 coupe was my first Porsche way back in 1959, I now have one more reason to cherish the memory of that fine vehicle.

Porsche AG News: 30,028 units were delivered in North America in 2003 including 13,661 Cayennes. "The Cayenne has exceeded all expectations and is a hit in North America." Sales of all Porsches in the USA is up 33 % over the previous year in a close relationship to the SUV sales. Winning new customers to Porsche, i.e., "fishing successfully in our competitor's pond," is firmly established with a mere 18% of the Cayenne buyers having been prior Porsche owners.

Ron for the Road

by Ron Leppke, Editor

<lepprd@mac.com>

As you may have noticed, there are at least two consistent themes in the editing philosophy of this publication. One is preference to never do clip art if there is a quality photo, preferably of Diablo members, that can be used instead. While my backyard tulips do not qualify as members, it was fun to put them in place of some clip art flower thing in the "Spring Flowers" Rally flyer (page 17) last month.

The other trademark of the Advocate has been the addiction to drop shadows everywhere. I will thus bend my rule against clip art if I can get a drawing or whatever onto a transparent (.psd) background. Usually this means to paste the art into a new transparent background file in Photoshop and then select the original background and delete it. You can also select the unwanted portions and "inverse" leaving the parts(s) you want selected. In any case, there can not be a drop shadow unless it is a .psd file with a transparent background.

An emerging trend began in earnest last month with black outline boxes gaining color. I tried a few mostly to see how they would turn out in the black and white print version, and was surprised by the number of positive comments from members who noticed the new colors in the online PDF version.

My original serious interest in the Advocate began not as a potential editor, but as a curious observer wondering how to get it to a file size that would allow online posting and downloading. I knew, for example that Ken, our fine previous editor, was submitting a CD to the printers of around 38 to 50 MBs for 16 pages with 10 to 15 photos. Not only was this too big to post and download, the size even strained my work Windows machine when trying to open the CD.

So what has been accomplished since those days? Last month 24 richly colored pages reeking with drop shadows and some 40 high resolution images were presented online in a 1.1 MB file size! Even though I have all the details of having achieved this nearly miraculous feat, it is still hard for me to believe. A many fold decrease in file size while increasing the number of pages and quality, e.g., more high resolution photos plus more pages, just does not seem possible.

The digital workflow, including the obvious digital photos, is a major explanation. Adobe and Apple also deserve accolades. Adobe's InDesign layout software leaves their older program previously used with the Advocate, PageMaker, and their major competitor, Quark, mostly in the dust. It was the ColorSync filters that are part of the amazing Panther version of the Mac OS that achieved the final reduction in file size.

The "inspiration" for a football photo at the top of the column comes from our good buddies, Jim Bauman and Tom Pickett, who edit the GGR Nugget with heavy doses of humor. Their January edition had a dog photo and, since they have been close friends forever, they have used high school era photos as well. My photo is not a dog, but a Tiger—a Reedley College Tiger on a float in the annual Reedley Raisin Day Parade. If nothing else, it does clearly show the superiority of digital photos when compared to such oldies. The dual GGR editors call their column "Two for the Road" which I like. I could change mine to "Ron for the Road," and, while that does not quite ring the bell for me, I will try it.

On Sunday, 4/11, I posted 45 photos from the Saturday Alameda Point GGR autocross, and had more than 100 visitors by Monday evening, 4/12, and 211 visitors after one week. Wow!

Wash 'n Shine Tech

text and photos by Chris Paterno

I thought I was going to be late for my very first tech session as your Diablo/PCA tech chairman. It was 9:15 AM and I was just leaving Benicia with the Krispy Kreme donuts and Starbucks coffee when I encountered traffic on the north end of the Benicia/Martinez Bridge. I think "slow traffic keep right" should be a law, don't you? Anyway, I arrived at AutoAffair at exactly 9:45 AM, expecting to be greeted by hungry and impatient members but the only familiar faces I saw belonged to fellow PCA'ers, Ted French, Rob Haitzma and Jack Carpenter. Where is everybody? The tech that was supposed to start at 10:00 AM began 25 minutes late as folks straggled in. Note to self; just because we drive fast cars doesn't mean we drive them that way, and Porsche owners like to be fashionably late.

Pablo Cela of AutoAffair began with introductions and then, at the end of the tech, made an announcement that all sales that day were entitled to a 10% discount. I believe that he also let us know that AutoAffair would donate a scooter to the club if $1000 in club sales was reached. I'm fairly certain we helped them achieve that goal.

Next up was Rob Lashin, also of AutoAffair, who let us know that they will be branching out to the auto tuning business. Their full service auto tuning shop will be opening in San Ramon in the very near future. A site has been selected and flyers printed so we should be seeing an ad in the Advocate soon. If you're in the market for performance upgrades, see Rob or Miguel Cela, owner of AutoAffair (see ad on page 22). They'll hook you up.

Last, but not least, was Robert Lee (925.525.7820) of the Touch of Pride, Mobile Auto Detailing. Before the session, he told me he had no prepared script, as his best presentations are off-the-cuff. I was a little worried because I needed him to speak on the topic for at least 30 minutes. I asked folks to spend their Sunday morning with us so I didn't want to waste their time. Little did I know that Robert has an encyclopedic knowledge on the subject and could have continued on longer. The three things I remember are: 1) If you're satisfied with the product you're using, stick with it. Otherwise, read the labels and ask the expert (Robert). Don't just buy the most recognizable brand as they're not always the best choice. 2) Location, location, location. Don't wash or wax in full sun. 3) Costco laundry soap is good for clothes, not so good for Porsches.

There were 21 attendees and many were first timers. I consider my first tech session a success because my primary mission as your tech chairman is to enlighten you on a variety of interesting Porsche related topics. The Q & A session was proof that caring for your car's finish isn't elementary.

Stay tuned for upcoming techs on Porsche maintenance and 911 valve adjustments, audio options, time trial/autocross preparation and clear bra applications. If you have suggestions for future tech sessions, please let me know. I can be reached at cpaterno@sbcglobal.net. See you at the next tech!

In the early years of our Region, we had our own autocross series. The number of entries was small enough and the list of men's and women's class large enough that just about everybody had a chance at an annual trophy.

Interest in autocrossing seems, once again, to be on an upswing within our Region. Two board members are among those who have become enthusiastic with our VP saying repeatedly, "It is the most fun I have had with my clothes on."

Ted French, Milo Dorr, Ed Dugan, Ken

Jones, Keven Mehlberg, Mike Vorkapich, Lavergne Thomas, Eugenie Thomas and Ralph Ligons are among those from Diablo who are either first or second in class for the 2004 GGR Series.

Clockwise: Ted French, Ed Dugan and Vern Thomas.

Congratulations to Sonnen Porsche:

Sonnen Porsche is easily the one advertiser that provides the most financial support for this newsletter. It is in this context, that it is a pleasure to report that Sonnen Porsche has once again received another award for what they describe as "being the best in the business."

Sonnen Porsche has just been awarded the coveted Porsche Premier Dealer Award for 2004 from Porsche Cars of North America.

The award is based upon data verified by the JD Power and Associates surveys of customer satisfaction from 19 Northern California Porsche dealerships.
